

THE MORNING POST.

SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMSES OF CONGRESS.
No. 122.

Washington, April 22, 1834.—Mr Webster at the opening of the Senate, presented the "missing names" (of the Albany distressions), which, in consequence of the extraordinary pressure of the times, were curtailed from the memorial. I believe their was an affidavit about the loss of the tail of the kite, which Mr W. said, could be made five hundred signatures longer;—the babes think it about long enough; but the kite is not that of Franklin; it will discover no new principle of science, or natural philosophy; and if it at tracts any thing, it will be only a shower of "words, words, words"—the three principal attributes of "whig" (whew!) oratory.

Mr Frelinghuysen presented a memorial from Somerset County, N. Jersey, approving the course of the administration, and opposing the "restoration"; and granted 20 minutes, more or less on the subject—Mr Southard followed suit; but made a most bitter, venomous, and mendacious tirade against the administration, for suffering the funds of a national charitable institution (the Hospital fund) to be perilled if not lost, by remaining in a stop-payment bank of the Metropolis. He depicted the conduct of the Executive in the most atrocious colors; and if any body had believed him, they must have thought the President was a greater "monster" than the Bank.—Upon his taking his seat, breathless—and as red and as mad as a turkey-cock, Col. Benton rose and began to cross examine him, as to what fund there was in peril? the Hon. disobeys of instructions, began to quackle the moment he attempted to answer; and I thought he would choke. He explained in great "distress" that it was the Hospital fund; he had not hinted before what it was. Col. B. rose again to push him to the wall, with another interrogatory, but Mr Frelinghuysen, with a deep groan, that seemed to come as far off as Somerset county, started to the floor, to come to the rescue of his colleague; because they both, (as they told us) were born in Somerset county; (and thought they had a right to turn a summer set, I suppose, against their instructions!) Col. B. however said he only yielded the floor to hear his question answered; and Mr Frelinghuysen groaned again, and sank into his seat. Col. B. then asked the Hon. Senator (Southard,) who placed the "fund," the charitable fund in that perilous situation?—(what a cruel question!) Mr Southard rose, and attempted to explain; and as long as he evaded the truth he got along tolerably well, but when he at last, for once was obliged to confess the truth, I thought he would have choked to death; I thought he would have died like another great man Annanias!—with the difference that he died with a lie upon his tongue; while the Hon. Senator was likely to give up the ghost, and the truth, together! Never has the removal of the Bank deposits caused half so much "distress" through the whole country, as this attempt of Col. Benton to remove the truth, so long and snugly deposited in the vaults of Mr Southard's heart! He did not confess in language, but in shame—no, not shame—for where there is shame, there may in time be virtue—he confessed in confusion, that he himself placed the funds, the charitable funds, where they were! And what kind of "funds" were they?—Bank stock!—not of pet Banks—nor of the U. S. Bank, which is better than gold—but of one of his bankrupt "Whig" Banks!—But enough of this.

The rest of the day was spent in a useless debate about Mr Forsyth's amendment to Mr Poindexter's Resolutions, rejecting the protest.

The opposition affected to think it a monstrous doctrine, that any thing could get upon the Journal of the Senate without their sovereign will and pleasure! when the rules allow that one fifth of the Senate can do this. They objected to Mr Forsyth's incorporating the Protest in his amendment; for why?—because, if he should withdraw it—and he would without their own consent;—he would withdraw the very protest they had "resolved" to reject, and they do not wish it withdrawn. What a preciously consistent piece of knavery!

And what has produced this state of things in the Senate? What called for the Protest? Clay's Resolutions. And what produced Clay's Resolutions, and procured their passage? The conduct of Sprague, and Bell, and Ewing, and Frelinghuysen, and Southard, and Moore, and others, who instead of being Representatives of the people, who sent them to the Senate, are their misrepresentatives. Here is the cause and the secret of all this opposition to the administration. While the people are supporting the government, their representatives in the Senate are betraying, and violating their trust. Such a state of things was never contemplated by the Constitution; it supposes that every man clothed with a high and honorable trust, may be honest for six years. But this is all moonshine! the constitution must be altered; for a very goodly portion of the Senate cannot possibly afford to maintain their integrity so long. It is "distressing." I hope they will be accommodated with a shorter tether.

Yesterday Mr Webster was calling for nominations. I would simply ask, why the Senate have not passed upon the nominations which have been before them six weeks already? Several of the land offices are closed in consequence of this neglect of the Senate; the nominations of the commissioners have a long time been before the Senate; but they have totally and grossly neglected their duty. In the State of Maine there is no Marshal. The Court will sit there soon; and yet there is no Marshal to summon jurors, serve precepts, attend court, or pay jury fees. The whole judicial machinery must be stopped, to enable a turbulent Senate to talk about some petty point of order, or spend their time worse in abusing the administration. Good God! and they call themselves patriots!—posterity will have to invent a name for them, more infamous than any now contained in their whole vocabulary of vituperation.

REIS EFFENDI.

A Mob.—The Tory Wigs raised a mob in Buffalo, upon hearing of the result of the New York election. A most wanton attack was made on the person of a young man in one of the coffee houses. He expressed to a friend of his, his preference for General Jackson. This being overheard, he was seized, thrown out of the coffee house into the street, and there most shamefully and severely beaten by the desperate and infuriated gang of Bank men. A man, who, in the streets or public places, expressed a sentiment unfavorable to the Bank of the United States, was in danger of his life, and serious threats of violence were made to men who were known to be opposed to the Bank, and who were met in some of the public bar rooms of the city.

$170,000, in specie arrived at New Orleans on the 10th inst. from Matanzas.

POLICE COURT.

[Wednesday]

A murdered man came on a whaling voyage.—In consequence of the long absence of William Dunn, a dealer in venison, who left his home, in Ticonderoga, New York, in February, 1833, for Boston, but did not return, his friends became alarmed for his safety; and their apprehensions were further excited, by hearing that one James Powers, of this city, who appeared to be the only person in the city that pretended to know any thing about Dunn, had told several strange and inconsistent stories concerning him. Mr John Blackman came on here, with the view of gaining further information respecting Dunn, but being unable to learn any thing satisfactory, and Powers' conduct appearing somewhat suspicious, he applied for a warrant for his arrest, which the Court thought there was probable cause to grant. The complaint, itself, explains the case, and is as follows:—

"To the Justices of the Police Court, Boston—John Blackman, of Ticonderoga, in the county of Essex, and State of New York, yeoman, on oath informs the said Justices, that he has probable cause to believe, and does believe, that on or about the first day of March, 1833, at Boston, aforesaid, one WILLIAM DUNN, of said Ticonderoga, commorant at said Boston, trader, was with force and arms, feloniously, wilfully, and with malice aforethought, killed and murdered, and that a large amount of money, with many articles of wearing apparel, of the value of four hundred and fifty dollars, were taken, stolen and carried away from the possession of said Dunn, and that he has probable cause to believe, and does believe, that JAMES POWERS, of said Boston, laborer, and ANN POWERS, wife of said James, did feloniously, wilfully, and of malice aforethought, kill and murder the said William Dunn, and steal, take and carry away the goods aforesaid."

To support this formidable charge of "robbery, killing, and murdering" the said William Dunn, it was proved that Powers assisted Dunn, in disposing of his load of venison, in this city, and that since Dunn's disappearance, both Powers and his wife have told contradictory stories respecting him. Affidavits were produced, deposing that Powers had said that he had visited Dunn in the House of Correction, repeatedly, and likewise in the State Prison. Powers endeavored to explain away these contradictions, by alleging that he had confounded Dunn with another individual; and as there was no evidence, other than the supposed contradictions, and no proof that Dunn was not living, Powers and his wife were discharged. Since their discharge, Mr Blackman, who is a relative of Dunn, has ascertained, that after he had sold out his venison, he lost all his money—most probably by falling in with a set of gamblers—and, being ashamed to return home, sold his sleigh and horses, went to Salem, and shipped as a sailor for Cuba, and, upon his return, embarked again on a whaling voyage.

It is probable, from the testimony adduced at the examination, that, when Dunn's disappearance first attracted notice, Powers, actuated by the vulgar vanity of seeming to be wiser than his neighbors, affected to know more about Dunn than he actually did, and thereby became involved in the rather unpleasant dilemma of a prosecution for murder.

Despair—Extension—Latin.—We shall be obliged to give it up, for we find it impossible to please the Atlas and its score of contributors—they dislike every thing that we do—our dinner speeches, caucus speeches, Faneuil Hall speeches, and in fact all that we say or write is condemned in toto. This is a hard case, for we have been laboring to please them for more than a year, and now find that our effort is "love's labor lost." We gave up the Robbins which the Major promised us, for the purpose of promoting peace, and would have been willing to have given up that hat, if he had only told us what we have lately heard, that he had lost another in a different way; but we were not aware of the extent of his misfortunes, and from an erroneous belief that he was able to pay the hat, insisted upon our due. Now, in order to evince our lenity, and prove to the world that we are not over-anxious for the possession of its goods, we hereby extend the time for the payment of that hat, to the expiration of three calendar months from this, the twenty sixth day of April, Anno Domini, (here is all the Latin we know, and we have written this paragraph solely for the purpose of introducing it,) eighteen hundred and thirty-four. Providing, moreover, nevertheless, notwithstanding, that the Major shall not twist us any more about making speeches.

Died, on board the U. S. schr. Boxer, at Batavia, of the dysentery, Burnham Getchell, of Maine; William Dever, of Charlestown, Mass; Hugh Williams; William Cooper, of Eastern Shore, (Md.) in the China Seas; Rueben Trefant, of Portland, (Me.) fever; Joseph Richardson, (act. Gunner of the Boxer,) suddenly.

The presence of the Woods will render the Concert this evening very attractive. We are surprised that Mr Williamson's name does not appear among the vocalists.

The Salmon which were lately sold in this city for one dollar and a half per pound, were bought, it is said, by the "distressed committee."

Narrow Escape from Drowning.—As the steamboat Gen. Lincoln was on her way from Hingham this morning, a sail-boat was observed to capsize about half a mile between the city and the Castle. Capt Beals being made acquainted with the fact, immediately steered his boat for her—at the same time the accident was discovered by the crew of a Pilot Boat, who manned their small boat and took off two individuals from the bottom of the sail-boat, leaving one there, not being able to take him off on account of the heavy swell—in the mean time a small boat put off from the steamboat and succeeded in securing the other, who was almost exhausted. They were three sailors, and were in the act of going about when she capsized.—Boston News.

BY THE STEAM-BOAT MAIL.

We extract the following interesting news from the second edition of the N. Y. Journal of Commerce of Thursday evening:—

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.—In the annexed letter from our Washington Correspondent, we are presented with an outline of the government plan in regard to the currency, as contained in a bill reported to the House on Thursday by Mr Polk, Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means.—This information is not contained in the Washington papers.

Correspondence of the Journal of Commerce.

Washington, April 22, 1834.

Mr Polk brought forward to-day, from his Committee, his bill to regulate contracts with certain local Banks, as depositories of the public money. The bill is accompanied by a short report from the Committee, and by a very long letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, addressed to the Committee on the subject of the currency. The Secretary recommends many provisions, with a view to secure the accountability of those local Banks which may be selected as deposite Banks, and also some provisions having in view the enlargement of the specie basis. He proposes to raise the standard value of gold, to inhibit the deposite Banks from issuing any note of less denomination than five dollars, and to provide further, that no note of less denomination than five dollars shall be received in payment of any dues to the Government.

The bill provides that the public money be deposited in such local Banks as the Secretary of the Treasury shall select, provided nothing in the Act shall prevent Congress from removing the public money and regulating the manner in which it shall be kept, disbursed, &c.;—that no Bank shall be selected which does not furnish a full statement of its condition and business to the Secretary of the Treasury, together with a copy of its charter, &c.;—that the selected Banks shall furnish statements of their condition and business to the Secretary as often as he may require, not exceeding once a week, also a weekly statement of its accounts, but not of its private accounts;—that the selected Banks, shall credit all sums received for the Treasury, as specie, and shall pay all drafts, &c. in specie, and shall render all necessary facilities in transferring and paying money for Government and charging no difference of exchange;—that no Bank shall be selected or continued as a depository of the Government which does not redeem its bills in specie, nor any Bank which shall, after the 3d of March, 1836, issue any bills of a less denomination than 5 dollars—that no bill of a less denomination than $5 shall be received by the government in payment of dues after the 3d of March, 1836—that the Secretary may, from time to time, when he thinks fit, require additional security from the selected banks for the faithful performance of their contracts—that if any Bank shall fail to fulfil its contract, or shall extend its business so much as to appear to be unsafe, the Secretary shall report the fact to Congress, if it be in session, or in the recess, may discontinue that Bank as a depository of the government, in which case he shall report the facts, with his reasons for the discontinuance, to Congress at its next session—that, until this law takes effect, the Banks already selected shall continue to be employed as depositories of the government—and, finally, that the Secretary shall lay before Congress, at the commencement of each session, a list of Banks selected and employed as depositories of the public money. The bill was finally committed to the Committee on the Whole on the State of the Union, but not without some little discussion, in the course of which Mr Seldon expressed the belief that the bill, before it passed, would be essentially altered, and the hope, that a renewal of the charter of the Bank of the U. S. would be engrafted upon it.

The Tory-Whig Celebration in Philadelphia, in honor of the defeat of the Bank men in New York, is thus humorously described in the Pennsylvania of Wednesday. It should be borne in mind that it was a gratuitous feast, paid for, probably, out of the contingent fund of the Bank, and charged under the head of distributing useful matter and information among the people.

The solemn farce of the Powelton Jubilee was enacted yesterday, in such a manner that the gettys of the entertainment must be heartily ashamed of it. The people feeling the ridicule attached to celebrating a defeat, went to work at first at turning the affair into the broadest burlesque ever witnessed in this vicinity.

The inducements offered collected a large and motley multitude. When the dinner hour came the rustic sports began. The meats were seized before they reached the tables, and torn to fragments by the fingers of the guests. Here ran a wig with a ham under his arm, pursued by a score of two more of wigs envious of his good fortune. In another direction scampered another lusty wig, shaking a round of beef over his head, and so on all over the ground. The crockery was smashed instantly. The tables were soon levelled to the earth by the multitude, who sprang upon them to see the fun.

After finishing his part of the entertainment amid the rars of laughter and the shouts of glee, the lads became thirsty and made an attack upon the ale and cider barrels. The contents of these were speedily extracted. Mother earth was refreshed with a goodly portion of their exhilarating fluids, and owing to the unskillfulness of the tasters, many of the 'wigs' themselves were thoroughly drenched. Sometimes a fortunate fellow would be seen with a pitcher brimming with foaming ale, smiling in triumph at his companions. The difficulty, however, was to get a taste of his prize. The moment the jug was raised to his head it would be seized by two or three brawny hands, and wrested away.

The establish adinkables being discussed the wigs began to snow-ball each other with potatoes, lumps of beef, half eaten hams, loaves of bread, &c., and when that stock of ammunition was expended, buckets and barrels were tossed high into the air, with the trite aphorism, informing those who were in danger's way that, according to the laws of gravity, "whatever goes up, must come down," a truth of which many heads were satisfied yesterday at Powelton. In a crowded part of the field, stones, pitchers, plates, staves, and even knives were thrown about with the utmost recklessness. A committee addressed these practical jokers several times, with great earnestness, but in vain—they knew how to celebrate wig triumphs, and persevered.

Four or five loft scaffolds, when covered with people, fell with a tremendous crash.—How many men were hurt, was not ascertained, but two were carried past us, evidently much injured.

At the upper end of the jubilee ground, a large staging was erected for the magnificoes. Many speeches were made from it—but as the wind blew strongly right in the teeth of the orators, no one could hear more than one word out of ten, and indeed but few appeared anxious about it. Oratory with a head wind, could not compete with ground and lofty tumbling by a troop of flying phenomena. The wig business was decided on all hands to be no great scratch in a political point of view; but surely it was the drollest, most outré affair that the heart of man could devise.

LATEST FROM MEXICO.

The New Orleans Bulletin and Daily News of the 7th inst. bring us advices from Tampico to the 25th ult.

Bands of insurgents continued in arms towards the Pacific, and the high roads, and even the streets of the capital, were infested by robbers; yet, notwithstanding, the general government was introducing considerable reforms, and appeared to be supported by public opinion.

Mexico, March 15.—At six o'clock this morning we experienced an earthquake rather more feeble than the last one—the line of motion was from N. to S. No phenomenon can be experienced in this world more terrible than earthquakes. Their causes exist in nature, and not in human actions, as ignorance and treachery have sought to persuade us.

Port au Prince, April 2d, 1834.—The commerce and the citizens of the United States are not in the least interrupted, and no molestation whatever is apprehended from the Government, or individuals in it. On the contrary, the Government, as well as all classes of people, manifest the strongest desire to improve the good feelings which subsist between the two countries, and to increase their commercial intercourse to the greatest extent.

"We are whigs," say the federalists, when they speak of themselves, "we are the whigs of the present day." Just as you like, gentlemen; if the name is a credit to you, why you are no credit to the name. The whigs of the revolution were honest men, and patriots. How would their pure souls stare to see the federal, blue light, Bankite whigs of the times!—Trenton Envoy.

Dreadful Accident.—One day last week, a Mr Ward, who was engaged in blasting in one of the granite quarries in this town, having made an ineffectual attempt to fire a charge, approached to examine and prepare it for another trial, when it exploded, and carried away one of his hands, and one side of his face. He was able to speak, and still lingers in great pain, but is not expected to recover.—Hallowell Adr.

A portion of the embankment of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal has slipped in, and we understand that considerable time must elapse before the evil can be remedied. Among the evils resulting from this accident may be mentioned a diminution in the receipt of pine wood from Maryland.—Philad. U. S. Gazette.

Rumor.—It is said the Kembles are still in the city, not having been paid off for their last engagement.—Manager Barry having been trusted by ex-Manager Dana, for the whole amount due. Fine times for the legal gentlemen, in all probability.—News.
